

National Association of State Head Injury Administrators

ABOUT NASHIA

In 1990, State government employees administering an array of traumatic brain injury (TBI) public programs on rehabilitation and community reintegration services held its first national meeting called "State of the States (SOS) in Head Injury." Conference participants established the National Association of State Head Injury Administrators (NASHIA) in 1993 to assist State government in promoting partnerships and building systems to meet the needs of individuals with brain injury and their families.

Members are State government agencies/government employees, retired State government employees, students supporting organizations, providers, and any individual who is interested in the field of brain injury. Members elect officers bi-annually and the organization is overseen by a Board of Directors and part-time staff. The organization is supported by dues and donations.
